6. FEES

- 6.2 Where it is agreed between the Introducer and the Customer, the Introducer may receive a charge from the Customer in relation to the introduction of the Customer to the Company.

For the avoidance of doubt, the Introducer and the Customer may agree that the Charge is structured so that it is payable over a period of time.

6.4 The Introducer undertakes to inform the Customer of all amounts received by the Introducer under this Agreement. The Introducer understands that the Company may, if so required by law or the rules of the FCA or any relevant regulatory body, disclose such amounts direct to the Customer.
